Fiji is situated in the country of the modern island of Oceania in the Pacific.. Australia, Fiji, New Zealand, Tonga, Samoa, American Samoa, Cook .Helping communities become more resilient to the impacts of Brexit The Local Government Association is responding to the Government's plans to review and fundamentally change the UK's land use planning framework to reflect the need for a more resilient and sustainable society. The new system will be used to plan the future of local areas and communities. The LGA's main aim is to help these communities become more resilient to the impacts of Brexit. In particular the LGA is interested in supporting Local Planning Authorities to be more effective in managing planning and development at a time of significant change and uncertainty to the economy. It is important that people in local communities have a voice in the process of planning for their future. LGA Chief Executive, Martin Tett, commented: "The Local Planning System is a very important part of the Local Democracy and Economic Development Act. This Act is fundamental for people and communities in the UK and this changes are very significant for local communities. "The impact of the votes to leave the European Union are widely felt across the country. It is important that planning is delivered in a transparent and sensible way in the interests of local communities." The LGA also states that communities are facing threats and challenges as a result of the Referendum result. The Land Use Planning System is not designed to help communities facing these challenges, and is not fast enough to support resilience, the LGA says. A range of political considerations have been used to meet the Government's stated aims, including a need to have planning powers over key areas of national interest. The LGA's response has been to offer to play a constructive role in a range of ways in the implementation of new land use planning in local communities. These include: supporting an effective and meaningful consultation on the proposals for local land use planning, with full and open access to policy documents; working closely with local groups and communities to identify areas of specific interest that need to be considered in the new system; assisting Local Planning Authorities to understand the implications of the Government's intentions, and facilitate a beneficial, collaborative approach to the work of Local Planning Authorities; and taking forward a number of recommendations in the Green Paper consultation on Local Planning
